Oral & Maxillofacial Pathology Journal

1. Aims and Scope

Oral and Maxillofacial Pathology is a peer-reviewed journal, that focuses on diseases affecting the oro-facial and related head & neck regions. Published two times a year, it covers a spectrum of articles which include:

a) High quality original research, clinical trials and experimental studies (in vivo and in vitro), pertaining to the specialty. Hypothesis driven research works with significant positive/negative results are encouraged.

b) Comprehensive and insightful reviews and mini-reviews of literature pertaining to topics related and relevant to the specialty.

c) Reports of cases which maybe rare in occurrence or show an uncommon presentation. Cases that provide a novel outlook on etiology, pathogenesis, clinical presentations, histopathology, diagnosis and/or treatment of disorders, are encouraged.

d) We also publish letters to the editor, short communications, book reviews and photomicrographs and images of interesting cases.

The journal provides a forum for discussion and publication of topics related to the fields of Oral and Maxillofacial Pathology, Oral Microbiology, Oral Medicine and Radiology, Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery, Oral Oncology and Forensic Dentistry. It also publishes relevant articles on general pathology, microbiology, oncology, dermatology, oto-laryngology, gastro-enterology, biochemistry, genetics, immunology and hematology.

This publication is of interest to oral and maxillofacial surgeons, head and neck surgeons, oral medicine and radiology specialists, pathologists, specialists in forensics, general dental practitioners, dental care professionals, special care dentists, oto-rhino-laryngologists, radiation and medical oncologists, physicians, nurses, radiologists as well as others interested in these fields.

2. Ethical considerations

Manuscripts submitted for publications must follow ethical considerations. Informed consent must be taken from patients wherever applicable as per the consent form available in this journal.

Informed Consent

Informed consent of the patients must be taken before they are considered for participation in the study. Patient identifying information, such as names, initials, hospital numbers or photographs should not be included in the written descriptions. Patient consent should be obtained in writing and archived with the authors.

Protection of Human Subjects and Animals In Research

When conducting experiments on human subjects, appropriate approval must have been obtained from the relevant ethics committees. All the procedures must be performed in accordance with the ethical standard of the responsible ethics committee both (institutional and national) on human experimentation and the Helsinki Declaration of 1964 (as revised in 2008). When reporting experiments on animals, authors must follow the institutional and national guidelines for the care and use of laboratory animals.

3. Copyright

The following guidelines must be followed before submission of the manuscript:

The author warrants that the work/contribution is an original research material and has not been published before and should not be under consideration of publication elsewhere except for previous publication in form of an abstract or as part of published literature (review or thesis) as may be included with the written permission of copyright owners. The author further warrants that the work/contribution (i) is not subject to any prior claim, encumbrance or agreement, (ii) will include appropriate warnings of harmful instructions, formulas and procedures, and (iii) will not contain any material that violates any copyright, personal proprietary or other right. This exclusive grant of rights under this Agreement means that the author may not delegate, assign, sub-contract or license the work/contribution in whole or part to third parties without prior written consent of the Publisher. If the work/contribution contains extracts or material from other copyright works, the author will obtain, at their own expense, before a paper can be considered for publication along with written permission, which shall be forwarded to the Publisher on delivery of the work/contribution from each copyright holder to use and reprint such material in all versions, forms and media now or hereafter known including all existing and future copy right and any renewals and extensions thereof anywhere in the world. Furthermore, the author will identify such material (if any) in the work/contribution and provide full and appropriate acknowledgement of its source. If such permissions are not obtained in a timely manner, the author will provide substitute material, revise the work/contribution accordingly and obtain the requisite substitute permissions, if necessary. If relevant, the author will obtain medical patient releases from patients if information about them or illustrations of them are used in the work/contribution.

Once the corresponding author has signed the Copyright Transfer form, the KSOMP would accept no change in authorship or in the order of the authors listed in the work /contribution. Also by signing the concerned form, the author reassigns the rights of co-publishing, or translation, including the digital rights, if considered necessary in future to the KSOMP.

While all care has been taken to provide accurate and correct information in accordance with the date of publication, neither the authors, editors nor publisher takes any legal responsibilities for any unintentional omission or error. The KSOMP makes no expressed or implied warranty with respect to the information contained herein. The published material cannot be photocopied for the following purposes: general distribution, promotion, new works or resale. If this is required, specific written permission requires to be obtained from the Publisher. Exclusive rights to reproduce and distribute the articles in this journal have been protected by copy right. This also covers the rights to reproduce or distribute the articles as well as the translation rights. No material published in this journal can be reproduced in digital format or stored in form of electronic databases, video disks, etc without the prior permission from the KSOMP.

EDITORIAL

Dear Readers,

It gives me immense pleasure to share with you the latest developments and achievements of the Oral and Maxillofacial Pathology Journal. As the Editor-in-Chief, I'm proud to say our journal has become a leading platform for disseminating cutting-edge research and advancements in oral and maxillofacial pathology. Our scope encompasses the diagnosis, treatment, and prevention of diseases affecting the oral and maxillofacial region, including bone and soft tissue disorders, infections, and neoplasms. We strive to provide a comprehensive resource for clinicians, researchers, and students, fostering collaboration and innovation in the field. In today's fast-paced academic and research landscape, publishing articles in high-quality journals is more crucial than ever. It is about sharing knowledge, sparking innovation, and contributing to the advancement of your field. For professionals in oral and maxillofacial pathology, staying updated with the latest research and breakthroughs is vital for providing the best patient care and pushing the boundaries of what's possible.

The field of oral and maxillofacial pathology has seen significant advances, from improved diagnostic techniques to targeted therapies. Research on biomarkers, digital pathology, and AI-driven diagnostics is revolutionizing how we understand and treat diseases. Publishing high-quality research helps disseminate these advancements, fostering collaboration and driving further innovation. That's why maintaining rigorous standards in journals is key – it ensures the research community and clinicians get reliable, impactful insights.

We publish a diverse range of articles, including original research, review articles and case reports. Our journal also features editorials, letters to the editor, and book reviews, offering insights into the latest trends and controversies. We're committed to maintaining high standards of quality and integrity, thanks to the tireless efforts of our reviewers and editorial board members. I extend my heartfelt gratitude to all contributors, reviewers, and board members for their dedication and expertise. Your support has been instrumental in shaping the journal's success. We look forward to continuing our mission to advance the field of oral and maxillofacial pathology.

Warmest regards,
